OUR TRIP TO THE WEST

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

We are looking forward with anticipation to our trip, during which we shall visit the leading communities of the West. Since being in Canada, we have heard much of the West, of its bigness, spiritual as well as physical. We feel that we shall not be disappointed and hasten to say in advance to the West "Sholom Aleichem."

ISRAEL'S MISSION IS PEACE

We rejoice in the important part that Jews are playing in the present attempt to outlaw wars. Jews have been frequently accused of secretly plotting the wars of the world. Yet the plan offered by Secretary Kellog to the leading powers of the world whereby war is to be outlawed between the United States and the nations who accept her proposal, was born and developed in the mind of a Chicago Jewish lawyer, S. O. Levenson. It was he who formulated a legal scheme for the outlawry of wars. It was his plan which was endorsed by Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate. It was Levenson who introduced the phrase "the outlawry of war." As a result of Senator Borah's influence Frank B. Kellog, Secretary of State, commenced on behalf of the United States those negotiations which may lead to the outlawry of war between the United States and one of the European powers. Mr. Kellog is being mentioned for the Nobel peace prize, and the Jew who conceived the plan which has made Kellog famous is forgotten.

We are also happy to note that it was a Jew who in the House of Lords moved that Great Britain accept whole-heartedly the proposal of Kellog. That motion made by the Marquis of Reading was passed by England's peers. The Marquis of Reading was sent by Great Britain as an ambassador to the United States during a crucial period. How appropriate it was for him to move the resolution which may outlaw wars between Great Britain and the United States forever.

The reply of the British foreign office to Kellog was a desire to exclude wars of defense from the outlawry proposals. But such a clause would nullify the treaty. The only wars that have ever been fought have been wars of defense. What nation will admit ever having embarked on an offensive war? All the armies being drilled to-day are being drilled only for defense. So are our cadets in the schools- so our militia. They are only to be used for defense of country. Strange is it indeed, that no armies are ever used for offensive purposes. Nothing will satisfy us but the public affirmation of the great powers that wars are archaic, ungodly, barbarous ways of settling disputes between nations, and that they must be outlawed forever. And when Jews throughout the world work for that end, we sing Hallelujah, for Israel's mission is peace.

MOSES MENDELSOHN NOT A REFORMER

A common error among students of Jewish history is to hail Moses Mendelsohn as the pioneer modern reformer, and thus to

WHAT PRICE AGENCY

The scene of the process of the formation of the Jewish Agency is about to be transferred from New York to London. Dr. Weizmann and Mr. Felix Warburg have already left for England where several other American Jews and a number of prominent Europeans are shortly to convene with a view to launching the agency. It is now some four years since the agency project was first mooted. The Zionist organization has devoted several conferences and congresses to the discussion of the proposition, adopting it in the face of heated opposition, and not without considerable misgivings on the part of many of its supporters.

The rich relatives whose beneficence was sought through the subterfuge of the Agency have until now been taking their time about consummating the plan of which they had ostensibly approved in principle. Mr. Marshall and several of his followers were conceivably drawn into the Agency deal in the first instance by the personal charm of Dr. Weizmann. Their dilatoriness in implementing their promise of co-operation lent colour to the impression that they were hoping to tire out Dr. Weizmann by their tactics of procrastination until he would forget about the whole business. Dr. Weizmann, however, is nothing if not persistent. He kept coming to America periodically—for the purpose of assisting in the Zionist campaigns—incidentally jogging the memories of the "agents." The latter employed all sorts of devices aiming at delaying the completion of the agency machinery. The situation in Palestine was critical. Time was precious. Help was urgent. They appointed committees and commissions and delegations to compile facts for them and submit reports. They could not do anything until they had volumes of findings before them.

And while the commissions and the experts were conducting their researches the principals were letting themselves in for other commitments which were bound to conflict with the ultimate activities of the agency. During the past two years, the Joint Distribution Committee, consisting of the element whom Weizmann was wooing for the agency, undertook major operations, involving tremendous sums, in Russia. The undertakings of the Joint came first with this element. There is no gainsaying the value or importance of the Russian colonization programme of the Joint. But there is no doubt that the gentlemen of the Joint will accord priority to the demands of the Joint as against any claims that may be made on them by the younger institution of the agency.

We should like to hope that the gathering of the score or two of wealthy gentlemen in London will mark the ushering in of a new era in the Zionist experiment. We should like to share the optimistic belief of the protagonists of the Agency scheme that the assembly of these individuals will constitute the creation of the Agency. But what will be the value of such an Agency? Can a handful of private individuals, not inspired by any positive ideal, play any worthwhile part in the life of a nation? Take for example the estimable gentlemen who are supposed to be representing American Jewry—they are important and influential individuals—but do we get the feeling that they truly represent any mass of crystalized opinion? So far as we know the American delegation will be composed of Mr. Warburg, Mr. Marshall and Dr. Lee Frankel. Their names carry prestige. They have a following in American Jewry who are prepared to buy anything that they underwrite. What will these gentlemen be underwriting in this instance? Zionism? Jewish Nationalism? A cultural revival? Of course not. A charitable or philanthropic undertaking? They have underwritten local charities and the Joint as the major philanthropic issues. The Palestine experiment savors too much of idealism and romanticism to be a sound charitable proposition. It has an element of usefulness. And they can recommend only this one element. Their approval can be only partial and provisional. Their association with the proposition is half-hearted and perfunctory. It is evident that they are not approaching the task with enthusiasm and determination. Weizmann has roped them in. They are going through with the deal. What will be the effect of this indifferent attitude on the part of the so-called leaders on the mass of apathetic followers?

Weizmann has spent four years on this agency matter. We are led to believe that we are about to witness the fruition of his labours. The great event will take place in London. And in America there is not a stir of enthusiasm. All around there is the dead calm of apathy. We are praying for the best. But we are not elated.—A.B.B.

Professor C. A. Brodie Brockwell, head of the Department of Semitics at McGill University, took the pulpit on Saturday at special services held for members of the graduating years at the university. Rabbi Julius Berger, lecturer in the same department as Dr. Brodie Brockwell, and minister of the synagogue, delivered the baccalaureate address.

"To-day we stand on the threshold of an entirely new mental outlook. The trend of modern thought is to make a thorough investigation into things psychic and spiritual," Rabbi Berger said in part. "The future lies with those who will be able to grasp the spiritual through the psychical. Life then will have a deeper meaning. The opportunity to spiritualize the world is immense."

Dr. Brodie Brockwell, who chose as his subject "The Ideal Man and the Ideal Student of To-day," reminded the students that graduation is "not the end of apprenticeship in learning, but the true beginning; for a man or woman who has become a true student remains one to his dying day. The cultivation of useful knowledge is the function of the technical school, but not that of the greater university," he added.

Mrs. J. Cohen, 805 Coté St. Antoine Road, was hostess to the Sisterhood Tuesday afternoon, May 22. Mesdames M. April, G. Weber and C. Kaplan assisted in serving. Officers elected were: Honorary presidents, Mesdames J. Finestone and D. Cummings; president, Mrs. A. S. Radovsky; vice-presidents, Mesdames P. Presner, D. Wiseman and S. Vosberg; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. Bernard; recording secretary, Mrs. A. Finestone; treasurer, Mrs. M. Dobrofsky; executive board, Mesdames J. Cohen, I. Finestone, P. Presner, S. Rosenstein, I. Garmaise, I. Benditsky, P. Cohen, M. Rosenfeld, M. April, A. Rothchild, M. Goldenstein and S. Decker; entertainment committee, Mesdames L. Caplan, I. Abrams and A. Rothchild; refreshment committee, Mesdames J. L. Sabbath, P. Cohen, C. Fisher and S. Rosenstein. Mrs. A. Fine spoke on "The Three Pillars," a book for Jewish women. Mrs. A. Finestone and Sydel Radovsky played. New members are Mesdames I. Abrams, M. Abrams, S. Rosenstein and A. Bronstein.

Shaar Hashomayim, Rabbi Herman Abramowitz, Côté St. Antoine Road, corner Kensington.

Modern youth's idea that the world owes it a living is quite a mistaken one, Rev. Dr. H. Abramowitz declared in his address at the special convocation service for 200 students in Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, Cote St. Antoine Road, Saturday morning. Practically the reverse of this idea is true, he stated. Youth has received the many great gifts with which it is endowed from God and should therefore realize that its part in life is to consecrate the harvest of these gifts to His service.

As Saturday was also the Feast of Shabuoth, Dr. Abramowitz took his symbolism from the reason of the holiday stated in Exodus, "The first of the first fruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the Lord thy God."

Dr. Arthur M. Vineberg, Bernard M. Alexandor, H. Carl Goldenberg, Abraham Kirschberg and Samuel Mescovitch participated in the service. Closing exercises of the Religious School, with the exception of the graduation class, Sunday, June 10, at 3 p.m. Programme: Hebrew, English, tableaux, recitations, distribution of prizes reception, entertainment.

Bnai Jacob Synagogue

Sisterhood met Monday evening, May 21, at the home of Mrs. B. Golt, 5870 Hutchison Street. Mrs. S. Cooperstone presided. $25 will be given for Sunday School prizes. Bridge, June 12, at the home of Mrs. M. Lefcort, Nelson Avenue. Two tables of bridge were played at the meeting. Prizes donated by Mrs. S. Cooperstone were won by Mesdames M. Schuchat and M. Lefcort.

"BEAUTY—OUTWARD AND INWARD"

During the past week thousands of children throughout the United States and Canada underwent the Confirmation Ceremony. And there is no doubt that many of these confirmants experienced a real spirit of consecration and self-dedication as they pledged to keep sacred the vow of Horeb. But, somehow, we have the vague sense that hundreds of boys and girls do not experience the inward beauty during the confirmation; their concern seems to be the outward beauty—the white dresses, their presents and their parties. This is the peril that teachers of religion may face in connection with the confirmation ritual. The teachers of confirmation classes ought to minimize many of the outward confirmation trappings and paraphernalia and give emphasis to the spiritual side of this beautiful ceremony. The text of the sermon for that occasion ought to be "Make Me Beautiful Within." Inward beauty has ever been the goal of Israel's life. And with the Psalmist of old the Jew ever prayed—"Bless the Lord, O my soul and all that is within me, bless His Holy Name."

JEWISH STUDENTS AND UNIVERSITY GRADUATE SERVICE

According to reports the authorities of McGill suggested that a special service be held in one of the synagogues for this year's Jewish graduates of the University. The cause for such a request may be traced to the fact that few Jewish students attended the religious convocations in the past years. We are not altogether in agreement with the innovation. A university convocation ought to be of such a universalistic nature that students—whether they be Hindu, Chinese, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant—may in unity pray to the Creator of the universe. On the other hand, even if something of sectarianism be included in a graduation service, it ought not to "keep away" students from such a function. We know of no other university on the North American continent where Jewish graduation convocations are held. We have a suspicion that graduation convocations are generally not well attended by students, whether they be Jewish or Christian. But even such a condition does not warrant a separation of students according to creeds in order to stimulate larger participation. The wish for communication with the Divine ought to be spontaneous. And if students are insensate to organized religious exercises, creedal segregations will not stimulate finer religious sentiments.

But there is another story to the special Jewish student service held this year which must be commented upon. The Jewish students somehow could not agree as to the particular synagogue where the service should be held. As a result division took place. Which, by the way, illustrates the remarkable spirit of Jewish "unity" flowering forth in Jewish youth. Of course, the blame will be thrown perhaps upon the authorities of the synagogues. But whoever may be at fault—"es past nicht."

A MARTYR FOR SCIENCE AND HUMANITY

Martyrdom knows no nationality. It is universal. We muse thus as we read about the tragic death of Professor Hideyo Noguchi, the great Japanese bacteriologist for the Rockefeller Institute for medical research, who died in the Gold Coast Colony, Africa. There, in the Dark Continent, Noguchi was conducting researches with reference to the nature and control of yellow fever. Those of us who are ever talking about a "yellow peril" and the danger of Orientals may well keep in mind that Noguchi was a Japanese. He belongs among the honoured; among the immortal "microbe hunters" who laboured in the cause of mankind.

MAIL BOX

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

Allow me through the medium of your valued paper, to highly compliment the Shaare Zion Sisterhood of Montreal, for the very noble work they are undertaking in this question.

The distribution of milk to the school children, as it exists at present is being looked after by the welfare societies of Montreal, and while I have no complaints to make at the way they are distributing, it nevertheless seems to me to be a rather crude way.

The moment a child is put on the milk list, he is immediately considered a case of charity, as no one can deny that the money is coming from that source. The Shaare Zion Society have been prompted in this movement by the very fact, that irrespective of what kind of a home a child comes from, rich or poor attentive or negligent home, that he should not be expected to go a full morning without some kind of nourishment. How many of us adults go without some sort of bracer, even if it be in the form of a cigarette or so.

They have succeeded in getting the Bancroft School of Montreal, where there are no poverty stricken cases, but at the same time there are over forty-five children who are underweight, and with the kind assistance of the medical superintendent, and the staff of teachers they will have exact data, taken from concise weighing, and proper nourishment by the end of the school term, when we hope to, with the assistance of the great influential press, bring realization to the Provincial Government that milk distribution is part of municipal administration not charitable.

Let every right-thinking Canadian look at this issue, from a non-sectarian, race or creed viewpoint, and the fact that the children of all nationalities will be sipping their milk in harmony, it will help to bring up healthier, wealthier and happier Canadians.

I thank you,
LOUIS K. CAPLIN.

More Favourable Conditions Indicated by Semi-Annual Bank of Montreal Report

Half-yearly Statement to April 30 Shows That General Business Through the Country Continues to Make Big Strides--Very Large Gain in Deposits—Strong Position Maintained.

The semi-annual statement of the Bank of Montreal for the six months to April 30 makes a strong and interesting exhibit. It indicates that throughout Canada trade and commerce contmerce continue steadily to expand.

Of a still more satisfactory character is the very large gain in deposits bearing interest, indicating as it does that the general public all over the country are continuing to add very materially to their savings. This is interesting in view of the almost unprecedented activity in speculation.

Even with the large increase in business handled, the Bank has maintained its usual strong position. This is especially reassuring at a time like the present, when numerous large undertakings are taking shape in so many sections of the country.

Total assets at April 30 amount to $868,187,616. They show a gain for the year of over $80,000,000, comparing with $784,112,774 at the corresponding date last year. The large business being done in serving the customers of the Bank is reflected by total loans of $382,340,890, up from $326,318,372, an increase of more than $56,000,000.

Striking gains are reported in deposits, the total of which amounted to $736,350,186 at the end of April, against $656,578,714 a year ago. Deposits not bearing interest totalled $143,773,753, up from $136,730,698, while interest bearing deposits now stand at $592,576,433, compared with $519,848,016 a growth during the year of over $72,000,000.

Of the total assets of $868,187,616, liquid assets amount to $452,864,416, equal to 57.37% of liabilities to the public. Included in them are cash holdings of $110,151,467, equivalent to 13.95% of public liabilities, comprising gold and subsidiary coin $33,608,833, Dominion Notes $57,542,634, and deposit in Central Gold Reserve $19,000,000.

The principal accounts in current assets include Dominion and Provincial Government securities of $81,642,523 against $90,007,661; railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks $6,929,569, compared with $3,935,421; Canadian municipal securities and British, foreign and colonial public securities, other than Canadian $42,353,736, up from $28,605,880.

Larger Business Handled

Reflecting the increased requirements of the Bank's customers, current loans and discounts in Canada are now reported at $297,609,586. This compares with $249,470,228, a gain during the year of over $48,000,000. Loans to cities, towns and municipalities stand at $25,076,930, compared with $22,749,114, and current loans and discounts elsewhere than in Canada amount to $57,580,519, as against $51,983,926.

The profit and loss statement shows that the heavier volume of business being handled has resulted in a normal increase in earnings. Profits for the half-year to April 30 were $2,994,900, and compare with $2,780,660 for the corresponding period last year. Added to the balance carried forward, the total amount available for distribution is $3,149,700. This was appropriated as follows: two quarterly dividends, $1,795,002; provision for taxes, Dominion Government, $199,583; and reservation for bank premises, $400,000, as compared with $250,000 for the same period in the previous year. This left an amount to be carried forward of $755,115.

The capital of the Bank now stands at $29,916,700, and the Rest has been increased to $30,916,700.

A HERO

One Saturday night recently, in the emergency room of Memorial Hospital in Albany, Dr. Benjamin Hoffman a Jewish interne of twenty-four, whose home is in Toronto, patiently treated one of the scores of citizens who daily visit the institution for relief of minor ailments. Suddenly the terrifying cry of "Fire!" rang through the corridor. In a few minutes thick clouds of poisonous, stifling smoke from a burning X-ray machine rolled through the building. The cries of bedridden men, women and children, many of them suffocating from the acrid fumes, the confused rushing of attendants to save them, the desperate efforts of firemen and police made up a spectacle of horror.

Blinded and nauseated, Hoffman with another courageous young doctor named Flater, ran through the building with wet towels about their faces, picking up helpless patients neglected in the general confusion. Not until every inmate was accounted for did they leave the building.

In this near-holocaust, Hoffman realized only one thing clearly—that the lives of the sick and helpless were dearer at the moment than his. Sick to the point of collapse from the poisonous smoke, he still sensed that higher and noble duty that prompts men to sacrifice self in moments of greatest hardship and danger.

The Jewish medical fraternity should be proud of this young hero.

At the recent convention of the National Council for Jewish Education held in Cincinnati, Dr. Julius Maller, research assistant at Teachers' College, Columbia University, told his hearers that Jewish education makes for honesty. Dr. Maller was referring to a survey made by Dr. Hugh Hartshorne and Dr. Mark Hay published under the title of "Studies in Deceit." According to the findings of these men, Jewish children with religious training as a group were more honest than those without such training. They found no clear-cut national differences in honesty, the Jewish group being on a par with the non-Jewish. In speaking of Jewish schools and their effect on the child in matters of honesty, Dr. Maller said: "In a situation where the teacher is dishonest with the principal, the principal bluffs his Board of Directors, the Board neglects its duties to the parents and the parents constantly practise trickery and hold up shrewdness as an ideal, no method of religious education will result in growth and development of character. To the contrary, in such a situation the religious ideals simply memorized by the children serve as a sentimental halo to cover corruption and add hypocrisy to deceit."

As the strongest factor in character training Dr. Maller gave "a healthy environment where honesty is the natural practice." To say that an honest person is more than a person who merely does not steal is a platitude. Dishonesty can mean a heap of things besides the theft of money or goods and a child's sense of right and wrong, honesty and dishonesty, can be shaped forever by the many small, daily subterfuges and evasions practised by people who would be outraged at the charge of dishonesty. How many children are blessed by this strongest factor in character training, this "healthy environment where honesty is the natural practice?" How many parents, Jewish or non-Jewish, are willing to discipline themselves to this extent?

"The habit of giving presents to the confirmants, stimulating as it may be to business, is an unmitigated nuisance in every other way. It adds to the evergrowing tax on social attentions which increase in extravagance as well as frequency and despotism; it engrosses the children's minds to the prejudice of the solemn, unselfish aspects of the ceremony; last, certainly not least, it is another of the many educational follies by which we rob our children of the real zest of life. What is there left for the miniature gentleman of thirteen with his gold watch and chain, various costly cuff buttons and shirt studs, endowed with a library of expensive books, besides a stupefying display of other ingenious luxuries? If the intention is to clog the poor victim's taste, to leave him nothing to look forward to, to make him hopelessly blase, to teach him to look upon himself as a personage, these methods are admirably adapted to their aims; but if confirmation is to impress upon the growing mind the duty rather than the right, the responsibility rather than the privilege, then we could not more effectively nullify every lesson of reverence and humility, distract the child-soul from all concentration on holy things than by making of the occasion an Aladdin's lamp to serve every idle, overgrown desire. The sending of presents is a kindly custom, especially when mitigated by its due accompaniment of charity; but in our competitive age we go to silly extremes, indulge thoughtlessly our impetuous impulses, until the weed almost chokes out the flower."—From the American Israelite, 1905.

This is the bar-mitzvah season and it is as conducive to writing as spring is for the poet. The exchange table of English-Jewish papers groans and sags every year with the added weight of accounts of bar-mitzvahs and expressions of opinion on the ceremony itself. Some editors or contributors extol it and other want it done over and some don't want it at all. Recently in this REVIEW, Rabbi Stern, of Montreal, urged the Jewish bishops to call a halt to the bar-mitzvah ceremony that seems to put the seal of knowledge on a boy who can hardly read his Mafter, or words to that effect. This column wishes to add its own cheering bit to the discussion: If any one should call a halt it should be the boy, the bar-mitzvah. There may be a lot of fun in being allowed to stay up late and watch all the grown-ups at a reception and dinner and dance and perhaps, if luck serves, to be given a regular boys' party as well, but there are also what look like disadvantages. The bar-mitzvah pays and pays and pays. He pays by getting six copies of Browning's poems instead of boxing gloves and by "appreciative" collections [illegible] a right to would exchange any time for a day at Sunnyside. He pays in listening to and trying to follow curtain lectures and ridiculous rules of deportment he never heard before and by being the centre of attraction even though it may be his nature to want to go off to a corner until the noise is over. But if anything must be a bitter pill to the happy-care-free bar-mitzvah, all dressed up, it must be his bar-mitzvah speech "rendered during dinner." Sometimes this is not only in one language but three, one for the Yiddishists, one for the Hebraists and one for the Empire. Odd, unaccustomed words and phraseology fall from the boy's lips for of course, he didn't write his speech himself. Someone else is guilty but the boy must bear the blame. He has been told how elegant it sounds and to pass it off as his own, dishonest as this is, incongruous though the effect may be. Worse than anything, he is made to recite in public his love for his parents (the best in the world) and to thank them for their great sacrifices on his behalf. This is too much to get out of a child performer. In the midst of shoulder corsages, imported gowns, cut-work tablecloths, shaded candles, an orchestra and catered dinner [illegible]

Jewish Scholars at Work on a Popular Encyclopedia

Since 1906, when the last of twelve volumes of the Jewish Encyclopedia was published, the world has witnessed changes of the utmost importance to Jews. This condition has augmented the demand for either a new edition of the old encyclopedia or the publication of an entirely new one, and the latter step has been undertaken by a group interested in promulgating Jewish culture and religion. A popular encyclopedia is now to be published by the Encyclopedia Judaica, Inc., and edited by Dr. Isaac Landman, editor of The American Hebrew.

Where the Jewish Encyclopedia consisted of twelve volumes, issued over a period of seven years, the new compilation is expected to contain but four or five volumes. It has not been decided whether the work shall be published as a unit or individual volumes. Actual editing will start in September. The writing and research are to be done by noted scholars, Jewish as well as non-Jewish. The encyclopedia is to be ready late in 1930. Already about one-quarter of the manuscript is in the hands of the editors.

Dr. Landman has resigned his rabbinate in Far Rockaway in order to devote his time to the encyclopedia. Asked the other day why he thought a new encyclopedia was needed, he said that he "had long wanted to edit a popular encyclopedia of the Jews, but one that would not necessarily be for the Jews, as that was one of the patent weaknesses of the older concordance.

"In my years as a teacher and rabbi," he added, "I have long found it difficult to get material on Jewish subjects easily and simply. My students quickly learned that the articles in the Jewish encyclopedia were not written for the layman, but rather for scholars and rabbis. Through this new encyclopedic venture I hope to be able to provide information and instruction concerning the Jews and their multitudinous activities for many years to come in a simple and popular way."

Dr. Landman pointed out that his encyclopedia would be novel in at least one respect.

"It is our intention to print two articles on every controversial subject, one on each side of a disputed question," he said. "At first sight this feature might seem fatuous because such treatment for too many arguable topics might fill up valuable space to the exclusion of other less disputatious but equally important matters. But there are not so many of these two-sided subjects. The matter of Zionism is of course, the best known. The question of Reform and Orthodox Judaism is always a heated question. Nationalism, immigration, the divine inspiration of the Bible and whether or not Moses wrote the five books attributed to him are some of the more important debatable questions that will receive dual treatment."

Dr. Landman pointed out that the popular encyclopedia would not replace the other as a source of reference where scientific and scholarly material is desired.

"My job will be to give the layman, Gentile as well as Jewish," he said, "a work where he can find what he wants to know about Jewish religion, customs, history, great men, art and literature without having to wade through a long treatise. For example, if some one wants information on the story of Chanuca, the popular encyclopedia will say, 'Chanuca is the story of the first successful struggle for religious liberty,' and then will go on to give in a few brief paragraphs the essential details of this Jewish festival."

Referring to the work of the American Hebrew's Permanent Commission on Better Understanding, Dr. Landman said:

"We expect to print a cheap edition of the encyclopedia to be put in the homes of Christian clergymen and so make available to them Jewish material with a Jewish point of view."

"I am especially interested, also," he said, "in the last volume, which will contain a completely outlined system of study courses for the use of Jewish families in small communities where there is neither a permanent synagogue nor a resident rabbi. This outline will be so arranged that it will enable a father to prepare his son for confirmation without the services of a rabbi, as well as offering prepared subjects for debate and discussion by Jewish culture societies and other educational organizations."

"Do we feel the spring urge?"

Summing up the matter very summarily — we rather do! We have no time for the rather poetic and romantic portion of the Spring allotment, such as frisky lambkins, blossoms, bird music and talkative booklets — ours is the more prosaic end that has to do with washing household articles ranging from curtains, rag carpets, dusters, and such, all the way to the daintiest of personal lingerie. And we feel the urge — the urge of thousands of Toronto housewives, who have come to rely on this laundry for their "family wash" problems. Day and night we feel this Spring urge — but we are well equipped with five different kinds of service to meet the greatest demand. Our prices are extremely reasonable. Phone to-day.

Are you spending too much for Food?

Save with ICE

MANY housewives who wish to cut down on daily expenditures are finding that they can save a lot on food through the use of ice. By keeping it in a well iced refrigerator from the moment they receive it until they prepare it, they retain the fresh food flavor—the family enjoy their meals more—there is less thrown out.

Then, too, through the use of ice, left-overs, once scorned, can be kept fresh and appetizing and made into dainty dishes that the whole family enjoy.

The few cents a day that ice costs pays for itself many times, not only in the value of the food saved, but in its improvement in flavor and wholesomeness.

blame reform Judaism for his children's conversion to Christianity. Moses Mendelsohn was not a religious reformer. He accepted as binding the laws of the Shulchan Aruch. All his life, he was a pious observant Jew. He brought down upon his head the denunciation of the rabbis, not for any religious heresies, but because he translated the Torah into German. Moses Mendelsohn, because he became the advocate of secular culture for Jews, may have indirectly caused reform to spring up. For his translation of the Pentateuch to German ended Jewish medievalism, when it introduced the Jew to the modern world. But Mendelsohn himself was not a reformer. He was orthodox and because his educated and cultured children could not be inspired by the ritualistic demands of the old faith, they left Judaism. A common sport in orthodox circles is to blame all the ills of Judaism on the reform movement. Ours is the conviction that the wholesale defalcations from Judaism which took place in Germany in the latter part of the nineteenth century could have been minimized if there had been a vigorous reform movement, which could have reconciled for the intellectual Judaism and modern thought. In the United States, where reform has been strongest, conversion of Jews to Christianity have been negligible. Mendelsohn's children who accepted Christianity were children of an observant orthodox Jew.
